

White House and U.S. Capitol

Both the White House and the U.S. Capitol are situated in Washington, D.C. The U.S. Capitol Building sits on top of Capitol Hill, and the White House can be found at 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue. The Capitol Building is the seat of the legislative branch. Congress meets here to discuss laws. People elected from each state participate in it. After a law is approved by Congress, it's passed to the White House where the president can sign or reject it.

Trace on the dotted line from each description to the correct building.

Its address is 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue, Washington D.C.

This is where the U.S. Congress meets.

This is the home and office of the president.

Laws are made here.

WHITE HOUSE

United States Capitol Building

Laws are signed here.

People elected from each state work here.

It is in Washington, D.C., on top of Capitol Hill.